THE MISSION

Red Feather's mission is inspired by a deep commitment to addressing the housing challenges faced by Native American communities while honoring their cultural traditions and values. The organization draws motivation from the principle of collective responsibility, which is rooted in Indigenous cultures and emphasizes the interconnectedness of individuals, communities, and the environment.

Red Feather's work is driven by a vision of a world where everyone has access to safe, healthy, and sustainable housing. This mission is further inspired by the resilience, resourcefulness, and cultural heritage of the Hopi and Navajo Nations, as well as the belief that collaboration, education, and innovation can create lasting change. By integrating traditional knowledge with modern solutions, Red Feather seeks to support communities and create a future where housing disparities are a thing of the past.

"The crew that came in worked hard and tirelessly and were very polite and cordial. I appreciate their time and hard work and most of all they were very respectful to home and property."

LETTER FROM THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Dear Friends and Supporters,

As the nation and tribal communities continued their recovery from the COVID-19 pandemic, 2023 marked a return to our full suite of programming at Red Feather Development Group. This year, we renewed and expanded our efforts to address Indigenous communities' diverse housing challenges. The theme of this year's annual report, "Diversity," encapsulates the multifaceted approach that defines our work and drives our mission.

DIVERSITY IN PROGRAM DELIVERY

Red Feather's initiatives span three essential pillars:

- Education: This year, we delivered two DIY home repair workshops that empowered homeowners, provided professional training for tribal trades professionals, and offered scholarships to support emerging tribal trade businesses. These programs not only built skills but also fostered self-reliance and community empowerment.
- Housing Assistance Case Management: In 2023, we connected 203 families with vital housing resources, including healthy home essentials such as firewood, safety devices, and funding for homeowner-led repairs. Collaborations with local partners such as Community Strong, Pikiwini Hopi, and Tewa Warmth enabled us to deliver water and firewood to elders and families in remote areas, ensuring no one was left behind.
- Construction Management: Our team oversaw critical housing repairs, impacting 206 homes. Projects included roof repairs, bathroom remodeling, and the installation of aging-in-place modifications, all instrumental in improving the health and safety of community members.

Through these diverse programs, we addressed the unique challenges facing tribal communities, meeting their needs with creative and culturally appropriate solutions.

DIVERSITY IN FUNDING PORTFOLIO

This year, Red Feather benefited from a robust and diverse funding mix, including corporate sponsors, private donors, private foundations, and federal grants. A notable highlight was the substantial financial support from Coconino County through the American Rescue Plan Act, which bolstered our capacity to serve more families. This varied funding portfolio enhances our resilience, ensuring we can sustain our work even when specific funding streams fluctuate.

DIVERSITY IN STAFF COMPOSITION AND PARTNERS

A founding principle of Red Feather is the collaboration and partnership between Indigenous and non-Indigenous individuals. Doing so brings together unique perspectives that leverage diverse values and pathways. This dynamic approach has been crucial as we work within sovereign tribal nations while engaging with predominantly non-Indigenous funders. This balance is essential to the cultural relevance and efficacy of our work.

WHY DIVERSITY STRENGTHENS NONPROFITS

Diversity is not just a theme for us—it is a strategy that makes nonprofits more effective. Diverse teams combine unique perspectives and experiences to create innovative solutions. At Red Feather, the blend of Indigenous and non-Indigenous staff helps us navigate cultural complexities while building meaningful and respectful programs for the communities we serve. Similarly, a diverse funding portfolio ensures that we remain adaptable and resilient in the face of challenges, allowing us to continue meeting the needs of those who depend on us.

Research shows that organizations with diverse leadership and teams better connect with various stakeholders, making them more impactful and sustainable. For Red Feather, diversity in every facet—our programs, staff, and funding—has been the key to our long-standing success and will continue to guide us into the future.

DIVERSITY AS A GLOBAL VALUE

At a much higher level, what brings beauty to our world is the unique diversity in each one of us. While we may sometimes see ourselves divided by boundaries and differences, celebrating what makes us unique can foster understanding, connection, and growth. When we embrace diversity as a strength, we build a stronger, more inclusive future for all.

Together, let's continue to celebrate the diversity that strengthens our communities and creates a world where everyone has the opportunity to thrive.

Our dedication to diversity across programs, funding, and staff empowers us to meet challenges with creativity and resilience. These efforts are only possible because of the support of our donors, partners, and community members like you. Together, we are creating a future where healthy and safe housing is a reality for all.

RED FEATHER DEVELOPMENT GROUP: BUILDING A DIVERSE LEGACY OF RESILIENCE AND INNOVATION

Red Feather Development Group has a dynamic history rooted in service, sustainability, and partnership with Native American communities. Since its founding in 1994 by Robert and Anita Young, Red Feather has been dedicated to addressing housing challenges in Indigenous communities. Inspired by the unsafe living conditions of Katherine Red Feather, the organization began its journey by building and rehabilitating homes with the help of volunteers, creating a foundation of hope and transformation.

In the early years, Red Feather pioneered innovative housing solutions, such as the American Indian Sustainable Housing Initiative, which introduced straw-bale construction techniques to promote self-sufficiency within tribal communities. Over the years, the organization evolved, relocating to Bozeman, Montana, and later to Flagstaff, Arizona, to serve the Hopi and Navajo Nations. By integrating traditional knowledge with modern practices, Red Feather has remained a trusted partner in creating culturally relevant and sustainable housing solutions.

Red Feather's journey from its first home construction project to its current impactful programs exemplifies the enduring power of collective action. The organization remains guided by its founding principles of collaboration and respect for Indigenous traditions. By addressing modern housing challenges and honoring cultural heritage, Red Feather bridges the past and present to create a more sustainable future.

Through the unwavering support of individual donors, foundations, grants, and partners, Red Feather Development Group continues to progress and transform, proving that when we come together, healthier, safer homes are possible for all.

HEALTHY HOME ENERGY AND SAFETY IMPROVEMENTS:

DELIVERING DIVERSE SOLUTIONS

In 2023, the Healthy Home Energy and Safety Improvements (HHESI) program continued to deliver meaningful impacts across the Hopi and Navajo Nations, addressing a wide range of housing challenges with diverse solutions. Through collaboration and a focus on health, safety, and inclusivity, the program helped families create safer, more efficient, and comfortable homes. This progress was made possible through close partnerships with organizations such as APS, Cozy Homes, and Brightline Construction, which were instrumental in achieving these goals.

KEY ACHIEVEMENTS IN 2023

- General Housing Repairs: Over 200 homes (206 in total) received critical repairs, ranging from structural fixes to comprehensive safety upgrades, reflecting our commitment to fostering safe and livable homes.
- Weatherization Projects: 186 homes were weatherized to reduce energy loss and improve comfort, saving families money on utility bills and reducing environmental impact.

FOCUSED SAFETY AND ACCESSIBILITY IMPROVEMENTS

- Roof Repairs: 37 families received roof replacements or repairs, protecting their homes from water damage and enhancing structural integrity.
- ADA Bathroom Remodels: 51 homes were upgraded with ADA-compliant bathrooms, including walk-in showers, grab bars, and other features designed to ensure safety and accessibility for elders and individuals with disabilities.
- Accessibility Ramps: 10 homes were equipped with ramps, improving mobility and providing independence for those with physical challenges.

ENERGY-EFFICIENT HEATING UPGRADES

- Wood Stoves: 19 families received modern EPA-certified wood stoves, reducing indoor air pollution and improving heating efficiency.
- Mini-Splits: 21 homes were outfitted with energy-efficient mini-split systems, offering heating and cooling solutions tailored to each household's needs.

This year's accomplishments demonstrate the HHESI program's ability to address the unique needs of diverse households while respecting cultural traditions, promoting sustainable practices, and fostering economic development within the Hopi and Navajo Nations. By combining modern technology with locally sourced labor and materials, the program improved living conditions and strengthened local economies. These achievements reflect the dedication of our staff, the support of our donors, and the perseverance of the families we serve. Together, through collaboration and innovation, we are creating healthier homes and shaping a future where every home reflects the resilience and diversity of its community.

"I would like to express Red Feather's commitment to helping seniors maintain their independence within their own homes as truly commendable."

NATIVE HOME RESOURCE NETWORK: CELEBRATING DIVERSITY IN SUPPORT AND SOLUTIONS

The Native Home Resource Network (NHRN) provides essential support for families across the Hopi and Navajo Nations, connecting individuals to vital resources and building resilient communities. In 2023, the NHRN program demonstrated the power of diversity—diverse resources, partnerships, and approaches—while addressing the unique housing needs of the communities we serve.

Through the NHRN program, we offered a wide array of solutions tailored to meet the unique challenges faced by families:

- Home Assessments: A total of 212 in-depth home assessments were conducted, identifying specific repair and resource needs for families. This individualized approach ensures that each home receives solutions that reflect the distinct circumstances of the household.
- Heating Assistance: Nearly 1,000 families (991 households) received vital heating support, ensuring warmth during the cold months and mitigating health risks associated with inadequate heating systems.
- Healthy Home Kits Dispersed: 101 households benefited from kits designed to address indoor air quality, energy efficiency, and safety, creating healthier living environments.
- Direct Solutions: 197 families benefited from microgrants to purchase materials, tools, or appliances essential for home repairs. This initiative allows homeowners to take an active role in their projects, leveraging their skills to create safer, healthier living environments.

The Native Home Resource Network (NHRN) program is dedicated to supporting households by providing firewood for heating, facilitating essential repairs, and distributing resources such as healthy home kits and aging-in-place kits, all delivered with deep respect for the traditions and values of the families and individuals we serve. This work is strengthened by a diverse network of contributors, including tribal agencies, local contractors, nonprofit organizations, and individual donors. Collaborative efforts with organizations like Wood Banks Community Strong, Pikunivi Wood Haulers, and the National Forest Foundation have been instrumental in amplifying our impact, ensuring families received vital resources through financial support and on-the-ground efforts, regardless of location or housing challenges. This year's accomplishments highlight the power of diversity, as the program combined a wide range of perspectives and approaches to address immediate housing needs and create lasting change. By equipping families with tools, knowledge, and resources, the NHRN program has helped households sustain their homes and secure a healthier future.

“Just wanted to thank you and the program for helping my mom! She was so appreciative and happy telling us about her new roof and windows.”

COMMUNITY OUTREACH AND DEVELOPMENT:

CULTIVATING KNOWLEDGE AND OPPORTUNITY

At Red Feather Development Group, our Community Outreach and Development initiatives are guided by the principle that education and opportunity are vital to building strong, self-sustaining communities. In 2023, these programs reflected the diversity of needs and aspirations within the Hopi and Navajo Nations, bringing meaningful resources and opportunities to individuals and families.

EDUCATION WORKSHOPS: SHARING KNOWLEDGE ACROSS GENERATIONS

Red Feather facilitated two education workshops focused on equipping participants with essential skills for maintaining and improving homes. These sessions addressed technical knowledge, such as weatherization techniques and energy efficiency practices, while fostering dialogue and learning across generations. Tailored to the unique needs of participants, the workshops provided a space for both traditional knowledge and modern home repair strategies, providing families with the skills and confidence to actively maintain their homes and strengthening a sense of community in the process.

SCHOLARSHIPS: INVESTING IN THE FUTURE

Red Feather demonstrated its commitment to fostering local trades and building a resilient workforce by awarding 18 scholarships to tribal members pursuing careers in construction, home repair, and other trades essential for addressing housing challenges in their communities. These scholarships covered costs such as training, certifications, tools, equipment, and repairs, reducing barriers to entry for aspiring professionals and empowering them to contribute meaningfully to their communities. Each scholarship represented an investment not only in the individual recipient but also in the broader business community, strengthening local economies and creating a self-reliant workforce capable of meeting the housing needs of the Hopi and Navajo Nations. Through diverse initiatives such as workshops that connect families to practical solutions and scholarships that create pathways to success, Red Feather's Community Outreach and Development efforts showcased the transformative power of education, opportunity, and collaboration. These programs, supported by partnerships with tribal agencies, local organizations, individual donors, and foundations such as the Arizona Community Foundation and the Gately Family Foundation, addressed immediate needs while laying the groundwork for resilient, self-sustaining communities. They ensure that every individual has access to the tools, knowledge, and opportunities needed to succeed.

The Navajo Nation spans over 27,000 square miles across Arizona, Utah, and New Mexico, making it the largest federally recognized tribal territory in the United States, while the Hopi Nation, nestled within its boundaries, encompasses approximately 2,500 square miles, reflecting a rich cultural and geographical diversity across vast, breathtaking landscapes.

“What I love about Red Feather is how they train and hire local contractors whenever possible to assist the most vulnerable members of the communities they work in. By using local labor, it supports a resource in that community that can help other families.”
